Origins and Early Years (1890s-1930s)

Italian cinema's roots can be traced back to the late 19th century with the advent of film technology. The first Italian silent films emerged in the early 1900s, often characterized by documentary-style recordings and brief narrative pieces. During the silent era, Italy produced notable works like "La presa di Roma" (1905), depicting historical events, and "Cabiria" (1914), directed by Giovanni Pastrone, which was groundbreaking for its epic scale and technical innovations such as the use of tracking shots. The 1910s and 1920s saw the rise of silent film stars and the development of national film studios. However, Italian cinema struggled to establish a dominant genre or style during this period, often overshadowed by Hollywood and other European countries.

The rise of Fascism under Benito Mussolini significantly influenced Italian cinema. The regime promoted films that showcased Italian culture, history, and nationalist ideals. Key moments include:

- Silent Era Influences: Films like Cabiria (1914) showcased elaborate set designs and costumes, emphasizing visual spectacle that would influence fashion presentations.
- Neorealism Roots: Post-World War II, Italian neorealist cinema (e.g., Bicycle Thieves, 1948) focused on authentic storytelling, but the emphasis on real-life aesthetics subtly influenced the portrayal of everyday elegance and understated style in later fashion narratives.
- Luchino Visconti's Opulence: Films such as Senso (1954) and The Leopard (1963) celebrated aristocratic decadence and luxurious costume design, establishing a cinematic language that combined storytelling with high fashion.
